If you have concerns at PS/IS 187, Here's who you can speak to:

1. Always start with talking to your child's teacher. They're able to answer questions about academics, grades, behavioral, social, and emotional issues. Teachers are a family's first and primary point of contact.
2. Our grade advisors are another resource for answering questions relating to schedules, grades, behavioral, social, and emotional issues. Speak to your child's GA if you cannot resolve a concern with your child's teacher.
3. If you need assistance with specific social and emotional needs, our guidance counselors can provide you and your child with support. They also are available to assist families with Middle School & High School Choice.
4. Our parent coordinator can provide you information about school services, programs, answer questions and address concerns. Speak to our PC if you can't resolve your concerns with either the teacher or grade advisor.
5. Our assistant principal and principal lead our school and oversee all staff and students. Speak to a member of our administration if your concerns have not been addressed by the teacher, grade advisor, or parent coordinator.
